Change in Product Label

Remark

Please be informed that several Nutrilite supplements have undergone label changes as per regulatory requirements. These changes affect both image and text on the product packaging. Rest assured, all product formulation and quality remains of the highest standards and has not been compromised.

For Nutrilite Daily, the supplement's statement on being suitable for children aged 4 and above has been removed. This is once again as per new regulatory laws that deems the supplement isn't recommended for children for safety reasons. Nevertheless, we would like to state that there were no claims or reports that the product has created an adverse reaction among children.

Please also note that you will still see these supplements with their old labels available for sale. New labels will fully come into effect once current and existing stocks deplete while changes to the new labels on the Amway website will take some time too.
